The Toulouse election was considered one of the most politically significant among the 69 runoffs in France's major cities. In general, local issues and personalities tend to dominate these city elections more than national ones.

The Toulouse victory by Pierre Baudis, however, did not mean that the majority dominated everywhere. Opposition figures held on for wins in Marseilles, La Roohelle, Metz, Lille, Pau, Orleans and Grenoble, beating tickets with several ministers on them.

Since the murders, even mod-erate Protestants had stepped up their demands on Maj. Chichester-Clark. Those demands included the setting up of internment camps for known terrorists, a massive army presence in Catholic areas and the re-arming of the local police. The British, as we'll as Maj. Chichester-Clark, mada it clear that such moves would only further alienate the Catholics and lead to more violence.

The outgoing prime minister, however, linked his political survival to one key demand. Shortly before he resigned, Maj. Chichester-Clark asked the British defense minister, Lord Carring-ton, and Sir Geoffrey Baker, chief of the army general staff, for a tactical change so that British troop units could move into the Catholic-controlled areas of Belfast, now free of soldiers and police. This was rejected by the British defense minister, in fear that such a move would provoke further disorder.

During a tense, hour-long meeting yesterday with the Ulster cabinet, Lord Carrington made it clear that London would have no choice but to take over direct rula of Northern Ircland unless it accepted British military tactics aimed at cooling Catholic and Protestant tensions.

Calley Jury Allowed to Hear Trial's Key Testimony Again

By William Greider

(WP) .- Over the objections of Lt. William I. Calley's lawyers, the My Lai court-martial jury are hearing again the entire testimony of four key prosecution witnesses-four men who said they watched Lt. Calley shoot civilians.

George W. Latimer, Lt. Calley's chief defense lawyer, protested the delay. "In this case, you've just got a situation that's very explosive. You have a man here waiting to see if he's going to live or die," he said.

Mr. Latimer also objected that the rereading of the transcripts or playing tape recordings of the testimony 'gives the government a double shot. It's a second trial, that's what it is."

Nevertheless, the judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, after asking the jury again if it wanted to hear all of the four witnesses. ruled yesterday that the six Army officers would be allowed to listen to the testimony of Dennis James Dursi, Charles Sledge and Paul Meadlo, four riflemen from Lt. Calley's platoon.

The jury met in a special session today to hear the testimony read. The judge said the defense should not assume that the rereading will necessarily damaging to the defendant. It could be the other way, he said. Cenel Punishment

Mr. Latimer complained that the long jury deliberation-now through its fourth day-placed terrible pressure on the TI-year-old lieutenant. "I think that's ing."

The six officers on the jury took an hour off yesterday afternoon to get GI haircuts. They were not supposed to attend church this morning because the defense objected.

"This is a touchy subject," sald Mr. Latimer, "but I must object because I think that any communication between a juror and a third person would have to be recorded and transcribed as part of the record. I hate to become a devil's advocate."

The judge suggested that court stenographers could record a private mass held for Catholic jurors, but Mr. Latimer pointed out that there are passages in the Old and New Testaments that are relevant to this trial and could influence a juror's judgment.

16 Million U.S. Adults Would Like to Emigrate

America's pressing social and eco-nomic problems are reflected to some degree in the growing number of Americans who say they would like to emigrate to some other country if given the chance.

For the first time in recent years, a significant proportion of one in eight, or an estimated 16 million Americanswould like to pull up stakes and live abroad. The present proportion, 12 percent, is twice as large as ir. 1959, just prior to the turbulent sixties. The figure is three times what it was a generation ago, soon after World War II. when the nation looked forward to a prolonged period of peace and tranquillity on both the foreign and domestic fronts. Young adults with college training are expected to play a major role in future America, yet, disturbingly, it is among this group that the desire to emigrate is greatest. No less than three in ten young adults between the ages of 18 and 29 with college training currently express a desire to leave their homeland.

Originally, South Vietnamese troops who were wheeling southeastward from the Lactian town of Sepone were expected to keep going right on into the Ashau Valley, 2 key stretch of the Ho Chi Minh Trail. 2d Saigon Deputy Is Arrested In Smuggling, This Time Gold SAIGON, March 21.-The National Assembly, never known for its problty, was further besmirched yesterday with the disclosure that the deputy speaker had been arrested in Thailand for gold smuggling.

The disclosure followed by one day the embarrassing revelation that another deputy had been caught attempting to emuggle heroin into the country for sale to American soldiers.

In its three-year life, the assembly has earned itself a reputation in Saigon's newspapers as "Our cwn Wild West show." There have been fistfights and allegations on the floor that various members had used their privileges to smuggle into the country everything from currency to girlie calendars, which are nominally barred in Saigon. The current session started off on a new low when one deputy offered to lower his trousers in the bouse. He wished to disprove another deputy's allegations concerning his manhcod.

wide elections before the legislative elections which must be held by mid-1973. Many of the alliances that were concluded for the municipal elections are likely to last though the legislative elections and they point toward a polarization of French politics, with the center heing squeezed either to the left or right, Toulouse, France's fourth largest city, was probably the best example of this . There the voters ended leftist local governments stretching back to 1924 when they refused to back Socialist Louis Bazerque, aligned with the centrists, against Mr.

Overall, today's runoffs showed that the combined Communist-Socialist opposition fared far better than when the Socialists aligneven if his party gained a major- ed with the center and let the Communists run alone. Though it was only on the local level, the relative success of the united left is expected to be given considerable significance in drawing battle lines for 1973.

It also was hard to overlook another dominant element in these first municipal elections since 1965: the gradual merging of the Gaullist political party the Union of Democrats for the Republic, UDR—into a broad-based majority. Many of today's local victories were not Ganllist wins, hut majority ones, possible because of UDR alliances with strongly implanted local parties, usually distinctly conservative.

The Gaullists showed throughout the campaign that they were willing to consider alliances with any party that rejected the Communists.

The centrists - those parties that under the Fifth Republic rejected both Communists and Gaullists-did not do well in these elections, despite solid wins hy certain centrist personalities in citles like Rouen, Lyons, Nancy and La Rochelle. The centrists, though unlikely to disappear so long as Gaullism exists, would be the natural losers in a political polarization.

Centrist Future Bleak

The future of such centrist parties as the Radicals, led by Jean - Jacques Servan-Schreiber, and the Democratio Center, led by former presidential candidate Jean Lecanuet of Rouen, was not brightened by today's results.

One example of the difference between local elections and national ones was the comfortable win in Marseilles today by the tickets led by outgoing Socialist Mayor Gaston Defferra. Mr. Defferre's tickets were winning about 50 percent of the vote compared to about 25 percent each for the majority and the Communists.

Not only was Mr. Defferre, who is aligned with centrists, resisting the national tide against centrist alliances, but he was easily carrying a city that gave him only 14 percent of the vote during the 1969 presidential elections against Georges Pompidou.

Potentially Significant Change

Israel Said Ready to Accept (Control' of Sharm-el-Sheikh)

By Jonathan C. Randal

JPRUSALEM, March 21 (WP). stemmed the tide of U.S. pressur Israel is now ready to settle for "control" rather than full sovereignty over Sharm-el-Sheikh, the strategic Sinai point commanding the straits of Tiran and Israeli shipping through the gulf of Aqaba, government sources said today

This imprecise but potentially significant change in Israeli thinking was communicated to Secretary of State William P. Rogers by Fureign Minister Abba Eban in their meeting Friday in Washington, the sources said. If borne out, the move would reveal more Israeli flexibility than the local press and officials have allowed in their assessment of Mr. Eban's tough talk in Washington and its alleged successful payoff in the Nixon administration and U.S. public opinion.

The sources reported that Mr. Eban told Mr. Rogers that Israel demanded "control—we don't say sovereignty—and ter-ritorial access to Sharm-el-Sheikh." The sources declined to define Mr. Eban's view of "control" as a lease on Sharmel-Sheikh along the lines of the U.S. Gusntanamo base in Onba.

However, the United States is believed to have actively canvassed Egypt about such a lease arrangement and the sources acknowledgement that Mr. Eban had dropped demands for full sovereignty was seen as indirect confirmation of Israeli interest. In the same conversation Mr. Rogers was said to have spoken of possible Israeli "use of the territory" at Sharm-el-Shelkh in drawing a distinction with out-

A further indication that Israel may be significantly less adamant than advertised was a hint from government sources that Mr. Eban might have more talks in New-York and Washington later this week when the foreign minister returns from a short visit. to Latin America.

Even Premier Golda Meir yesterday sought to soften Israel's visceral reaction to Mr. Rogers's suggestions that international guarantees and a United Nations peace-keeping force were more important to the Jewish state's security than defensible borders involving holding on to Arab land occupied in the 1967 wer.

She told a meeting of the World Congress of Conservative Rabbis, largely attended by Americans, that "we have no friend capable of doing what the U.S. can door has done-for us." While Mrs. Meir often sounds similar themes in speeches, it was noteworthy that this line had re-turned to her thinking now that her government believes it has

Could Go to Agnew

Backers of the plane, which is strongly supported by the administration, could still save it in the Senate if they could pick up four of the six undecideds. That would give them a 49-to-49 tie and enable Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, as presiding officer of the Senate, to cast a tie-breaking vote in favor of the plane.

The improvement of the SST's prospects in the Senate stems from labor-business lobbying over the past month and the election of a handful of conservative sen-ators in place of liberals last

Last December, the Senate rejected the SST by a 52-to-41 vote. If pairs are added to this tally, and the two senators expected to be absent are eliminated from consideration, the vote would have been 56 to 42. Sen. Prox-mire right now would be happy to settle for a two or three-vote margin Wednesday.

Part of the narrowing of the gap is the result of the election of Bill Brock, R., Tenn., J. Glenn Beall, R., Md., and Robert A. Taft, R., Ohio, in place of more liberal Democratic senstors who had opposed the SST last winter. Sens. Brock, Beali and Taft are all voting for the SST. If Sen. Labor Lobbying Crucial

The campaign being mounted by organized labor—sparked by the AFL-CIO and International Association of Machinists, which has 300,000 of its members in the aerospace industry-end a battery of aerospace firms is also believed to be a key factor.

"The AFL-CIO, that's the difference," said an aide to one of the senators leading the drive to save the plane. The aero-space industry isn't worth a spit in lobbying. He estimated that without the labor lobbying effort, the SST would have lost by 20 Senate votes Wednesday, instead of having a real chance of

Soviet Assails 'Rude Attacks' Against Kremlin by Peking

By Bernard Gwertzman distortion of Marxist-Leninist

MOSCOW March 21 (NYT) --The Soviet Union today assailed Communist China for what it called last week's "rude attacks and slander" against the Kremlin leadership. It said that the Chinese statement played into tha hands of anti-Communists who hoped for en aggravation of Soviet-Chinese relations.

The Soviet retort, issued by Tass, the Soviet press agency, was the first mention bere of the Chinese attack, which appeared last Thursday in three major Peking publications.

The Chinese said the Krcmlin leaders were opposed to world revolution and were using force to enslave the peoples of Eastern Europe and Mongolia. Peking specifically assailed party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in the charpest criticism of the Soviet Union since a lengthy ideological attack at the time of Lenin's centenary last April.

Commune Anniversary The ostensible reason for the Chinese editorial was the 100th anniversary of the Paris Commune, an event of great importance to Communist ideologists.

The brief Tass statement was low-key in nature, and accmed to reflect a Soviet desire to avoid dignifying the Chinese attack by over-reacting to it. Soviet leaders are thought to regard the Peking editorial as part of a Chinese campaign to discredit the Soviet leadership on the eve of the 24th Soviet Communist party congress, due to begin a week from Tuesday.

The Chinese have already rejected a Soviet invitation to the congress, informed Soviet sources

In its reply, the Soviet Union sald that the Chinese editorial "expounded the known concepts of Maoism," and contains "a

Yahya Talks With Rival Paki Leaders

DACCA, East Pakistan, March 21 (Reuters).-West Pakistan political leader Zulfikar Ali Bbutto had a two-hour meeting with President Yahya Khan today on the nation's political crisis shortly after arriving here from

The area around Mr. Bbutto's hotel resembled an armed camp as machine-gun posts were set up on the hotel roof and troops and police fanned out to surround the building.

Mr. Bhutto was driven to the hotel in a heavily armed convoy. He was whisked through a crowded botel lobby but the elevator etuck for three minutes and an angry crowd, shouting anti-Bhutto slogans and waving placards reading "Bhutto political bastard," surged forward and thumped on the lift door. Mr. Bhutto's room was changed and he was moved to the top floor, where he immediately conferred with his aides while armed men stood guard outside. Within an hour he drove to meet President Yahra, who has beeen trying for six days to defuse the crisis which threatens to car Pakistan apart. President Yahya and Mr. Bhutto, after their two-hour talk, arranged to meet again tomorrow. The president will also have another meeting tomorrow with the East Pakistan political leader, Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, whom be met for 70 minutes before Mr. Bhutto's arrivel.

Today's meeting with Sheikh Mujib was their fifth in six days. A statement issued after the meeting said Sheikh Mujib sought clarification of points arising from yesterday's session. It is believed that major changes are being prepared to reconcile surging Bengali nationalism in the east with a united Pakistan. These changes would involve the scrapping of President Yahya's plans for a phased return to representative government and the proclamation of an Interim constitution giving legal sanction to Sheikh Mujib's cffective takeover of the eastern

Peril to Nation, Primate Says · By James Feron 🗀

WARSAW, March 21 (NYT).-Stefan Cardinal Wyszyuski, the Polish crimate, warned today that the nation's birthrate was falling so fast that "our very existence as a nation is in danger."

In a pastoral letter read at two masses in every church in Foland this morning, the cardinal said: "Our birthrate is the lowest in Europe and the fastest falling." He said Poland was faced with ething our hitterest enemies were unable to accomplish." He said there were three reasons for the situation: a panicky reaction to a postwar baby boom, abortion legislation and severe economic conditions discouraging large families. The church's improved relations with the new Communist leader-ship of Edward Gierek were evident, however, in an explanatory note preceding the pastoral letter. Letter Was Delayed The note said that the pastoral letter was to have been read on

Dec. 27, but that it was withheld, "in view of the events of that period," a reference to the unsettled conditions following anti-government riots and a change in government, -

"Many things have changed now," the cardinal's explanatory note said. "The situation is more favorable and it is hoped that it will improve further."

Although there appears to be little likelihood of abortion leg-islation being repealed, the new government has sought to improve the dismal economic conditions that were a major cause of the low birthrate.

Cardinal Wyszynski said there were about 750 legal abortions in Poland each day but that the figure might actually be twice that. The government also openly propagated contraceptive devices, he said, "putting them sometimes even in the hands of teen-agers." 'Cemetery of History'

According to official statistics, he said, the number of firstgraders five years from now will be half of the present number. He described the situation as "frightening? and said: "We will be thrown on the cemetery of his-

Policy Change Not Forecast In Australia

Bury Appointed Foreign Minister

CANBERRA, March 21 (UPI). -No significant changes can be expected in Australian foreign policy following the announcement tonight of the appointment of Treasury Secretary Leslie Bury as foreign minister in a cabinet

Prime Minister William Mc-Mahon announced that Mr. Bury would take over Mr. McMahon's former post, which fell vacant when Mr. McMahon moved from the foreign affairs portfolio to prime minister on March 10.

The 58-year-old Mr. Bury is s conservative by philosophy and has supported the growth of Australia's Vietnam commitment under Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies and after under the late Harold Holt.

At a news conference immediately after he gained power following the overthrow of John G. Gorton two weeks ago, Mr. Mc-Mahon said he was anti-Communist and the strongest supporter in the cabinet for the Vietnam commitment and the American alliance.

In other shifts, Mr. McMahon elevated four backbenchers,

Film Producer Agrees to Delete Mafia References in 'Godfather'

By Grace Lichtenstein

NEW YORK, March 21 (NYT) .- At the request of the Italian-American Civil Rights League, the producer of the film "The Godfather" has eliminated all references to "tha Mafja" and "Cosa Nostra" from his screenplay, which is based on the best-selling novel about a Mafia family.

Al Ruddy, the producer, announced the changes at a news conference here Friday. He said that the changes had come out of several meetings with league representatives, including Anthony Colombo, whose father, Joseph Colombo, is a reputed Maria leader in Brooklyn.

They wanted to sit down with us and see if the movie was going to be an anti-Italian film," Mr. Ruddy said. "We looked at the script together." All that was removed, he added, was three mentions of the name of the crime syndicate.

Mr. Ruddy confirmed in an interview later that proceeds from the premiere of the film would go to the league. The film begins shooting in ten days and is expected to be released

The screenplay was written by Mario Puzo, author of the book, with the help of Francis Ford Coppela, who will direct the multimillion-dollar film for Paramount Pictures. Mr. Puzo dld not participate in the negotiations with the league, according to Mr. Ruddy. "He has no feeling about it one way or the other," Mr. Ruddy said. "He feels he's done his work and any modification will be done without him."

American Express Manager Of Greek Branch Arrested

ATHENS, March 21 (NYT).-Demetrics Papaerstration, general manager of the Greek branch of American Express, the U.S. travel agency, was arrested here Friday in the latest security undup ordered by the militarybacked government.

No explanation was given by the authorities for arresting Mr. Papaerstration, who was secre-tary-general for Greek tourism in 1964-65 and is well-known here and abroad for his promotion of the Greek tourist trade.

Mr. Papaefstration was one of four persons so far identified among an undisclosed number arrested since Friday. The others were: Air Force retired Brig. Gen. George Papadonikolakis, chief editor George Romaios of the liberal Athens daily To Vima. and Demetrics Maronitis, ousted Salonika University lecturer in Ancient Greek literature.

There were reports of further arrests, but officials declined any disclosure of names or charges. The four identified prisoners were reported being held incommunicado at the special-branch headquarters of the Greek military police opposite the American Embassy building in Athens.

The number of persons rounded up in November and December is still unknown. Diplomatic sources acknowledge 43, but the opposition claims the number is closer to 140. A regime spokesman who invoked a military court ban on the publication of such reports, said those arrested were all accused under the 1947 anti-sedition law.

Some sources suggested that the arrests were designed to deter a planned declaration this week of faith in the democratic, liberal and humanitarian ideals and principles that had inspired tho to be made by over 100 intellectuals and other personalities hostile to the regime.

The President's Orgy of Revelation

By Max Frankel WASHINGTON (NYT).-Instead of old and new Nixons, there are now said to be two Nixons, the public and the private—and maybe even a third Nixon. It is the private President, we are told, who has been finally coaxed and encouraged to show himself so elaborately in public. "When Presidents begin to worry about images," Mr. Nixon told Miss Walters, "when they begin to be concerned about polls. when they begin to read their press clippings, do you know what happens? They become like the athletes, the football teams and the rest, who become so concerned about what is written about them, and what is said about them, that they don't play the game well ... ccustantly preening in front of a mirror, wondering whether or not he is getting across as this kind of individual or that."

Others

If Mr. Nixou is indeed unconcerned, it may be largely because plenty of other people are worrying for him. Like Attorney General John Mitchell: "The President isn't getting across the way he should. People don't see him the way they should." Like Herb Klein, Or Ron Ziegier, Or H. R. Haideman, Or William Safire. Or Even John Connally, the new secretary of the Treasury and refugee from the Texas Democratic party, joined in the conversion effort. After one stimulating conference with the President he is supposed to have said something like. "Gosh, this is interesting. Why can't people see this?"

Interviews

Naturally, say the imaga makers around the President, Mr. Nixon preferred to risk interviews by reporters he deemed to be supporters of his views. It was in this spirit that Mr. Haldeman, his closest aide and doorkeeper, screened the recommenweeks before the favored visitor knew of the honor. Reaction

The country's reaction is not yet known, and neither is Mr. Nixon's. For there must be behind the publicly private President that his staff is so eager to exhibit, the truly private man, He shows through only oc-casionally, as when he speaks approvingly of the tenacious individualism and Puritan ethics of his parents, who would rather go into debt than place a sick brother in a public hospital. This is the determined man, the I'll-show-them man, and the man who can never wholly release himself from his own mental grip and the consciousness of his historic role. Mr. Nixon knows well how this inner man works. He offered a recently to discuss his son-inlaw's views on women's liberation because "he might have to run for something some day." Moments later, in remarking that Mrs. Nixon always insists on looking nice and proper when someone else is around, he added: "I am a little bit of a problem myself, because I don't want to go around in my sportshirts as much as people think I should,

When it arrives, tough, wiry Dubaians and Indians load it temporarily in the how. Just before the sun rises over the desert on the edge of this tiny Arabian state, the dhows slip out of the creck for the 2,400-

According to a carefully-and sccretly-made plan, when the dhows reach the Indian coast off Bombay, and mingle with bundreds of similar looking fishing ressels, the boats from Dubai rendezvous with their contact.

Brisk Activity

Because Indian fishermen often iash their boats together to un-load a day's catch or to take on a relief crew, there is nothing unusual about the brisk activity across the decks when the con-traband changes hands.

But what happens during a typical transfer is unique—gold worth $2 million at international prices is exchanged for nearly twice that much in silver and an assortment of currencies and

The man primarily responsible for the flourishing business life here is Dubai's ruler, Sheikh Rashid Bin Sald al Maktum, who has managed to attract foreign businesses without upsetting Bedouin tribal customs.

The discovery of oil here has further boosted the importance of Dubai. But it is the re-export of commodities such as gold, Swiss watches, ballpoint pens and Japanese textiles all of which end up on the black markets of Iran, Pakistan and India—that is the basis of life in Dubai.

Tight Import Curbs

Because of tight import restrictions in those countries, businessmen here take high risks to get the forbidden Items there.
According to Dubaians, Western bankers and others close to the gold operation, here is how it operatives wait for the signal from India that everything has been arranged on that end for the pick-up. The message usu-ally arrives in the form of a telegram that may sound like a routine family or business matter.

"You know a shipment is on the way," said one banker, "when Land Rover pulls up to a side door of the bank and the gold is taken away."

Gold Bars

The gold is fashioned into 10-tols bers. The tols is an Indian measure, and you can easily close your hand around a 10-tola bar of gleaming gold. Each bar is worth $132.50.

Gold is such a hot item in India.
because it has both high social and monetary value and because its importation is illegal. At an Indian wedding, for example, the amount of gold that is presented to a bride often determines the status of the marriage. A new-born child is presented with gold rings and bra-celets that are re-fashioned and enlarged as he grows older.

In India there is also a deep distrust of currency and banking. and many families will hoard gold in ten-tola bars. The official rate for the dollar is seven rupees, but on the active black market a dollar will buy 12 and a half rupees.

Although the Indian Navy patrols the coast off Bombay, they rarely are able to catch any of the smuggling boats for several reasons. They are virtually indistinguishable from the boats in the native fishing fleet and because the sinnighers' dhows, which have powerful diesel engines and vast stores of fuel, can outrum the Indian coast guard.

Chases Off Bombay

A 50-foot dhow with a 230. horsepower engine can hit 15 to 16 knots and can make the 2,400mile round trip without refueling "Sometimes there are breath-taking, high-speed chases off Bombay," said one source.

Occasionally a dhow will he forced to cut its engine when it is caught within gun range of a patrol boat. The captain of the smuggling boat will order the gold to be dropped overboard in the relatively shallow coastal waters and try to mark the spot with a submerged buoy.

When the dhow is boarded and searched, customs authorities only find a hold full of fish or other legal cargo. Later the boat will return and divers will bring up the gold. Sometimes, however, a shipmeet of $2 million is lost because the buoy breaks loose and the gold. sinks below the soft, mushy bottom.

Even with the risks of losing some shipments, because of the enormous profits to be made; one source estimated that one of every ten operations can be a total loss and there's still plenty of money to go around. Because it requires hundreds of persons to maintain a secure smuggling network, the profits are whittled down considerably by the time the Dubai operators get their share. But it is rarely lower than 15 percent of the original value of the gold. That comes to $45 million a year for the tightly controlled group based in Dubai.

New EEC Maneuver?

France Questions the Role of Sterling

By Richard Norton-Taylor

BRUSSELS (WP).—France has placed the question of sterling's future role as an international reserve currency squarely at the forefront of the negotiations for British entry into the Common

In a new, and generally considered surprising, development, France told its European Economic Community partners last week that Britain must progressively diminish foreign sterling balances held in London during the years following British entry. It said that the pound's future should be discussed along with the other major issues confronting the negotiators. The French initiative is understood to have been drawn up at a special ministerial session in Paris Wednesday, headed by President Georges Pompidou himself and attended by Prime Minister Jacques Chaban-Delmas, Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann. It was communicated to France's partners on Thursday.

The official Prench document also states that Britain must abolish the system whereby British Commonwealth countries have preferential acress to the London capital market and which discriminates against European countries.

Political Motives

The assumption in Brussels is that the French demands are dictated almost entirely by political motives. There is little or no attempt at providing answers to the complex issues surrounding sterling's international role. The most obvious question mark hangs over the practicality of introducing a strict program to limit foreign-held sterling halances and over means of funding them.

This latest move reflects the French view. Inspired partly by a certain envy (France has frequently attempted to expand the influence of its own franc zone), partly by a narrow view of the Common Market's responsibilities, that worldwide and European ohligations are difficult to reconcile. France argues that by having an international reserve currency

British financial and monetary interests would be in conflict with its potential role as member of a Common Market on the path, however uncertain, toward economic and monetary union. This view is shared to varying degrees by its five Market partners. France shares the Market's Executive Commission's gloomy view of Britain's economic prospects, a concern which cannot easily be brushed off totally as being born of political motivation. In the first place, the point is made that the reserve role of sterling has enabled successive British governments to pursue an "undisciplined" balanceof-payments policy. With this and the other outside influences in view, France says that the accumulation of sterling balances makes Britain's monetary position "particularly vulnerable." The French government has gone as far as to imply that specific Common Market rules which give member nations the right to introduce unilateral safeguard measures in cases of economic crisis should not be applicable to issues arising out of sterling's reserve role or to problems affecting the whole ster-

Market Support

The French proposals to some degree may be due to a deeply felt suspicion that Britain would continually invoke the safeguard clause and seek the help of the Market's system of "automatic" short and medium-term financial support for member countries in balanceof-payments difficulties. France has said, however, that it would be willing to participate in the Basel sterling underwriting agreements, due for renewal in September, if Britain becomes a member of the Common Market presumably, with conditions attached. Britain and the Common Market have already agreed that Britain's economy and the role of sterling should be "discussed" in the sidelines of the entry negotiations, although not in the negotiations themselves. The British view is that these issues are far too complex to be taken up together with all the other outstanding problems in the way of a speedy end to the enlargement talks.

So far, official discussions on sterling and the economy have taken the form of a questionnaire to Britain, requesting, for example, forecasts on the repayment timetable for Britain's international debts (at present totaling some $8.673 billion) and growth-rate provisions (with the Executive Commission skeptical of Britain's assumption that its growth rate will increase significantly from its current low point of just under 3 percent, even in the late Seventies). The initial British reply to these and other questions was wholly evasive.

France has clearly implied that sterling from now on must be considered a major issue of negotiation. The French representative in Brussels, Jean-Marc Boegner, insisted last week that it must be along with the three major problems which have blocked real progress with in the entry talks so far: Britain's contribution to the Market's and the market's an central budget, the future of New Zealand dairy exports and Commonwealth sugar exports to Britain.

French Timing

France's partners were surprised more by the timing of the probabilities in initiative than by the initiative itself. In Brussels, many observers described it as a clever tactical move. One view is that France, clearly the contract of the probabilities of the p out on a limb on all the other key issues of the entry talks, has the nothing to lose by bringing up another difficult problem.

On the contrary, as the time approaches when, to preserve the

On the contrary, as the time approaches when, to preserve the strength of its political will in favor of British entry. France has to begin to compromise on the package deal of the budgetary contribution. New Zealand and Commonwealth sugar, it is altogether in the interest to add another burden to the package.

British diplomats are playing down the French move on sterling. The first is pointing out that Britain was prepared all along to discuss sterlings at the future in an appropriate forum, so long as the search for solutions and to the problems involved did not create a new obstacle in the way of the British entry.

But behind these reactions, there is an undercurrent of nervous and processing But behind these reactions, there is an understand the Market state ness in the wake of the French demands on sterling. Some Market states have ness in the wake of the French demands on sterling.

TU-144 May Fly First, But Will It Sell?

Moscow (WP).—The Soviet Union's Tupolev - 144 supersonic transport appears closer to production and use than either of its troubled Western competitors, the Anglo-French Con-corde or the American SST.

According to the Soviet minister of civil aviation, Soviet pilots "will start mastering" the TU-144 this year. But no date has been set publicly for it to start service. They elso feel that those factors, combined with additional marketing disabilities. ill prevent the Soviet Union from selling many TU-144s to Western airlines. It is true that Aviaexport, the Soviet organization for selling aircraft abroad, has been advertising the TU-144 in such publications as Aviation Week and Jane's Directory of World Aircraft,

Moscow observers find three probable motives for this: an intent or wishful thought to achieve actual sales, a desire to build Soviet prestige while Western manufacturers cannot yet advertise supersonic transports, and a desire to fuel the American lobbying effort for the

The last reflects the fact that the Soviet aircraft industry has no guarantee of the precise country's resources. If the U.S. Congress appropriates more money for the SST, Soviet aircraft makers can turn to the Kremlin and say, in effect, "You have to give us the rubles to finish the TU-144 because the Americans are going ahead."

So far as the ecological problem goes, the Soviets have made public no facts about the TU-144's sonic boom except for statements by a test pilot and testflight passengers that they could not hear it.

The Soviet Union is much less pollution-conscious than the West. In addition, the sonic-boom problem is smaller here than in the West because the Soviet Union is sparsely populated, compared with the United States and Western Europe. Aeroflot could conceivably route planes around urban areas and minimize the effect of booms more thoroughly than is possible in the West. That depends in part on the routes chosen. Alexei A. Tupolev, designer of the TU-144, said two years ago that it would operate on routes over 1,200 miles long. Most Moscow observers think it would be uneconomical on routes

On the economic side, the Soviets have said only: "Economists have estimated that the cost of e flight on the TU-144 will not exceed that on subscnic planes."

under 2,000 miles.

Moscow observers are convinced that the TU-144 in fact will have costs comparable to the Concorde's. An American study put the operating costs of the Concorde per passenger mile at 40 percent more than existing fourengine jets, a fact which would require at least a 25 percent surcharge on regular passenger fares. If that is true of the TU-144, the Soviet etatement becomes simply a promise that the government will absorb these extra

However good the plane is, Soviet marketing disabilities remain a factor. The first is a penchant for secrecy that might prevent Western civil aviation authorities from learning what they want to know about how an aircraft is mede as well as how it performs.

Despite the signs of Soviet interest in Western sales, the Aviaexport advertising is rich in colors and poor in specifications. So little is known about the TU-144 that Western sources report nose-totail lengths varying from 188 feet 6 inches to 196 feet 10 inches, and wingspans from 72 feet to 88 feet reflect design modifications that have also been rumored, but Soviet sources have not which are the latest figures. The second marketing problem is the traditional Soviet inability to provide service and spare parts on a basis acceptable to the West. Third is the fact that Soviet accounting methods lead to what Westerners regard as inaccurate cost estimates, even if there is no conscious intention to cheat Fourth is the simple fact that Soviet international aircraft have never been as comfortable for passengers as their Western equivalents, though Mr. Tupolev rated passenger comfort a prime consideration in the design of the

All these factors led to dissatisfaction with the performance of Soviet Dyushin aircraft sold to Ghana over ten years ago. Ro-mania bought British BAC-111s when it presumably could have had Soviet planes.

Some observers believe that if the TU-144 is successful, competition in world markets will come less from attempts to sell the craft to Western airlines than from selling faster service to that handful of passengers that would rather cross the Atlantic in two hours than in six, or Siberia in three hours instead of ten.

The standard of service on Aeroflot makes Westerners think the latter choice would well be worth a surcharge. Such reactions warn against overrating Soviet competition for passenger-miles. But the Soviet airline, which now serves 60 countries, is extending its international routes. Its standards may go up as it moves into more competitive routes.

Norwegian ships also hunt seals on the Front, although they no longer enter the gulf. Canada, which has acknowledged that the Norwegians have a historic right to take seals inside the 12-mile limit on the Front, is loath to act on its own.

Humane societies and the news media, which have been observing the hunt, have provoked public debate about whether and how harp seals should be hunted. in the 1960s at the insistence of the humane societies require that whitecoats be killed by one or more blows to the head. The hardwood club must be 24 to 30 inches long and at least 2 inches thick for at least half its length.

Other methods have been tested, according to the Fisheries Department, but none have "been found to be as satisfactory in rendering a quick and painless death as the hardwood bat now in regular use by the hunters."

The humane society observers concluded that the landsmen generally did not know the regulations, especially with respect to the crushing of skulls or the immunity of mothers. Ranking federal fisheries' officers, who agreed, lifted at least 12 licenses and seized four clubs said to be too

The Tactics of Terror

Banning Chemical Warfare

The political crisis at Stormont, with the strains that have developed between the British government and that of Nnrthern Ireland over the selection of a successor to Major Chichester-Clark, pravides another example of how the tactics of terror can influence events. The actual number of dedicated terrorists in Ulster may he mlnuscule; the extent of their support amnng the discontented there is far from cleer. But their acts have stiffened the right wing of Ulster's ruling Unionist party to the point whera Britain may have to choose between seeing a repressive government installed in Stormont and assuming actual rule over

These are rather impressive results, and it is quite possible that the actual murderers among the Catholic minority in Ulster may be pleased with them. For they are thereby moving toward that confrontation between British and Irish which is the traditional battleground of Irish nationalists-and it is the nationalists who are transforming the Ulster conflict from one over civil rights for a minority to warfare against Irish partition. It is the kind of transformation that gives aupport to those revolutionary theorists who maintain that policy should be controlled by the fighting units.

It is, however, also an example of the irrationality of terror, so far as all but the fanaticel segment of the population which uses terror is concerned, and may yet prove to be fatal even to that segment. Régis Debray is one of those who believed in the idea that the leadership of a revolutionary terror.

movement should naturally rest with those who fight in the field. Be may have changed his mind since the failure of Che Guevara and his own imprisonment; that is not particularly important. Other movements that subordinated thought to action have encountered slmllar disillusionment—the Black Pantbers, for example, hadly split and gravely weakened; the Weathermen; even Fidel Castro himself, who is finding it more difficult to run a national economy than to wreck a government.

Northern Ireland has serioua ills-social, economic and political-which are emblttered hy religious differences that nearly all of Christlanity has relegated to history. These can no more be cured by raw nationalism than the same recipe can end the troubles of the French in Canada or the blacks in the United States. Rather, the issue of nationelism in Ireland has hamstrung reform and is giving increasing popular authority to those, on both sides, who simply want to shoot it out.

It is often said, especially in reference to Vietnam, that unless guerrillas are defeated. they are victorious, which has more than a germ of trnth. But it might be said with almost equal truth that unless guerrillas are defeated, everyone loses. There have been guerrilla movements that smoldered and flared for years without any conclusion, and other's that came to power with none of the rational attributes of authority, only a collection of slogans, appetitles and guns. As can be said of any other form of war, there are better ways of solving problems than negotiete? They don't have to WASHINGTON.—Part of the trouble in the United States-Israeli dispute over a Middle East peace settlement is that Washington has come forward with only half a policy.

A good case can be made for the proposition that Secretary of State William P. Rogers was instrumental in the first place in getting the cease-fire and getting the peace talks started, but he has been quite swift, specific and public in supporting the withdrawal of Israeli forces to the 1967 frontiers, and quite veguo and private about the political and military arrangements that would guarantee Israel's security If she withdrew.

Mr. Rogers has made clear to the Israeli foreign minister. Abba Eban, that the U.S. favors a multinational peacekreping force, including the U.S. and the Soviet Union, that would "guaany borders freely negotiated by Israel and the Arab States, and that this peacekeeping force could not be withdrawn without U.S. consent. But this leaves many vital unanswered questions in Israel's mind. For example:

• Would the four major powers - the U.S., the Soviet Uoion. Britain and France-be a mixed peacekeeping force with troops of all nations patrolling all sectors of the borders together, or would the peacekeeping troops be assigned separate "sectors" of the frontiers, as in Berlin? The whole idea of a legal Russian presence on Israel's borders is distasteful to the Israelis, but a Berlin-like settlement with separete Soviet 'sectors" is "unthinkable."

• Would Israeli and Egyptian troops be part of the peacekeeping force Mr. Rogers has in mind at. say, Sharm el-Shelk on the Gulf of Tiran? Mr. Rogers has not said.

· What about the thousands of Soviet troops, airmen, and technicians now in Egypt? the peace settlement is secure as Mr. Rogers seems to believe it would be, would the Soviet troops go home after a settlement or stay behind in Egypt in close proximity to Israel's borders? This has not even been discussed.

Aside from these fundamenta? questions, the U.S. and Israeli governments differ on the wisdom of putting forward any U.S. peace proposals at this time. Mr. Rogers feels strongly that this was essential to get the talks started, but he insists he was not trying to "impose" his proposals on anybody, but merely encourage Israeli-Egyptian negotia: ions.

It would be hard to overstate the Israeli government's opposi-tion to this procedure, or to the visible arger of Israeli officials for what they regard as Mr. Rogers's "meddling" and his "presumption."

Israeli officials here, on what evidence they do not say, assert that if the U.S. government had not come forward with the suggestion of "total withdrawal." Israe! could have negotiated a reasonable settlement with Egypt, even on Sharm el-Sheik. cause, they say. President Sadat of Egypt needs peace to get on with his desperate internal political problems, to avoid another military confrontation with Israci, and to avoid total domination of his country by the Soviet

"All of these things." one Israeli official here said. "are weighing very heavily on the mind of Mr. Sadat and I think they could be put to work in order to induce him to give us better deal, if only the U.S. had not identified itself literally with his territorial claims. "Why should the Egyptians So there is a fundamental dis-negotiate. The U.S. is negotiating on their behalf. And what in fact you have today is an Israell-American confrontation instead of an Egyptian-Israeli negotiation. All you're doing now is wading in deeper and deeper." Mr. Rogers rejects this argument out of hand. It is fallacious as bell, he says. Nobody has ever suggested that anything should happen until there is total agreement on all sides. If Israel wants to negotiate, he adds, why don't tbey go ahead and negotiate, get together with Ambassador Gunnar Jarring of the United Nations, and "present their posi-Mr. Rogers recalls that when this whole movement toward peace talks started with his speech back in 1969, Foreign Min-ister Eban of Israel listed "four things" that were essential to Israci's security, and that as a result of U.S. intervention, Egypt had agreed to three of them presumably the fourth concerned the frontiers). Mr. Rogers's fear now is that if Israel does not come forward with specific proposals to match Egypt's concessions, Mr. Sadat in Cairo may be in deep political trouble at home and the chance for a political settlement will be lost.

agreement. As Mr. Rogers sees it, the Israelis are asking the U.S. to stand aside on the negotiations and provide economic and military aid for a settlement that Mr. Rogers feels Israel cannot get from either Egypt or the Soviet Union. "After all." be says, "we have our own national interests to consider too." Nevertheless, after a geoera-tion of incessant fighting, the Israelis are at least entitled to know in precise detail what the security arrangements would be If they did withdraw: what troops, where, on the libe or in "sectors," for bow long and with what "Soviet presence," if any, in Egypt.

It is easy to argue about whether Secretary Rogers was right or not in pressing the talks -without him the shooting might still be going on-but half a policy is not necessarily better than none. Until he is as spe-cific with his political and military guarantees as he was with his pian of total Israeli withdrawal, the ugly personal arguments between Washington and Jerusalem are likely to continue.

President Nixon's Indochina Scenario

By Chalmers M. Roberts

WASHINGTON.-If you want w to understand what President Nixon is doing in Indochina and what he meant when he spoke of jerking the rug out from under his 1972 political opponents on the war issue, lift your eyes' above the daily headlines about the bloody battling in Laos.

By all creditable accounts he will announce in Aprit a continuation of at least the cur-rent 12,500-a-month troop withdrawal rate and some insiders guess ha will publicly project that figure from May 1 to Oct. I or thereabouts.

There is a caveat here: that the current South Vietnamese ground action with American air and logistic support in Laos ends up satisfactorily by the time the rains come around May 1. And there is at least a good chance that will be the case and almost a certainty that will be claimed

If so, the period from May 1 in Oct. 1, more or less, should be one in which no major North Vietnamese actions are likely: The offensive in Laos, so the scenario goes, will have further degraded Hanoi's ability to engage in major actions when next winter's and next spring's fighting season arrives. And so by mid-1972, that is, just prior to the national conventions to nominate presidential can-didates, the U.S. troop level should be down to about 100,000 men and by election day to the 50,000-60,000 range of a residual force.

A Catch-

There is, however, one catch in that figure which the administration has not been talking about. In addition to the residual force within South Vietnam itself, the scenario calls for retaining the bulk of the current air power now provided by the U.S. from its bases in Thailand and aboard Seventh Fleet carriers in the Tonkin Gulf. The hope is that this air power plus that being turned over to the South Vietnamese, including hellcopters, will enable them to control the fighting both in South Vietnam itself and in the border areas of Laos and Cambodia as well. A good many thousand men thus must be added to tha residual force left in South Vietnam itself to fully reflect the continuing American military

One insider, with no political axe to grind, has "worst cased" this scenario and comes up with four possibilities, any one of which could upset it: 1. A political crisis in South Vietnam in connection with tha October presdential election, But as of now the election probably will go oil as scheduled with President Thieu the likely winner by a bigger margin than the first time he won.

2. Some sort of military disaster such as could occur before the Laos campaign ends or a surprise somewhere else in Viet-

3. A dramatic move by Hanol's allies, China and the Soviet Union, such as Chinese ground intervention or a new Soviet weapons system being introduced with major effect. 4. A Eanoi decision, in the face of a good South Vietnamese showing in the current Lacs campaign, to move in northern Laos against the royal capital of Luang Prabang or even the administrative capital of Vientiane, for which Hanol currently has the capability.

Hopefully, for the scenario, none of these things will occur and Mr. Nixon will be able to stick in his withdrawal pace, American casualties will decline to close to zero end the war ivsue will be jerked out from under his opponeuts.

The essence of the administratico's scenario is that those who don't believe it will work are prisoners of history, stuck with the sad history of the American plunge into Vietnam up to President Johnson's refusal to go further and President Nizon's beginning of withdrawal. In this category are placed the Senate doves who overbelleva that past is prologue.

The track record for predictions on the war has been so bad that the scenario given here should be as suspect as most of those which preceded it. with some breaks, this one could turn out to be right simply because the war has done more than kill people; it has altered the military-political balance in Indochlus.

Thus Mr. Nixon could, repeat could, end up by election day with the war the non-issue he wants it to be and with an anti-Communist regime in the saddle in Saigon as well.

wa refuse to accept Mr. Rohr's allegations. For if he keeps himself up to date, he will find that our government is initiating new industrial and agricultural projects almost every day, which makes Mr. Rohr's allegation about unemployment unrealistic and which may directly or indirectly benefit Mr. Robr himself if he is employed in Libya or has business interests there as well as tens of thousands of other foreigners.

End the Draft?

Sen. Buckley's arguments for ending the draft are somewhat misleading: The plight of the draftee is not quite as unhappy as he paints it. Comparing wages, for example, is reasonable if you don't forget to mention, as Sen. Buckley does, that an unskilled worker's $6,000 must go for food, clothing, housing and at least some medical expenses before buying whatever luxuries he can afford, while the Army provides these necessities gratis to its draftees, including all medical expenses, and a minimum of $2,750 besides. The supplement for wives, admittedly. could be more generous, but the Army lets draftees out if real

Today's draftees tend to dislike the Army because it places great limitations on their personal freedom and may well expose them to discomfort and hardship and even get them killed, or because they consider war wrong. They are reluctant and critical soldiers and by so being create the impression that they may balk at orders that professional soldiers, who identify their interests with those of the military command structure, would accept. This makes fighting the Victnam war more difficult; and it reduces materially the possibility of a military supported sibility of a military supported takeover of the American gov-bardship is incurred.

We have enough problems without making things easier for those simplistic men who fear change and would use force to prevent it. I say it's a worthy and not too painful sacrifice; let's keep the draft a hit longer, even if Sen. Buckley doesn't agree.

U.S. Vietnamization Policy If American Vietnamization policy has not yet been successful. It has also not yet falled ... neither in Cambodia nor in Laos. This American strategy has apparently won auccesses imperiling North Vietnamese troops. But if it had totally failed, the warnings from Peking would be meaningless, at least as far as they were intended for Washington. Let's admit that they were intended for Moscow as much as for Washington...

The outcome of the so-called Vietnemization policy... does not depend only on the Vletnamese. President Nixon cannot hetray his allies. Does not the Mao team similarly judge that it cannot betray the revolutionaries? Between the U.S. and Red China, the past still raises the same obstacles: Taiwan and Vletnam. It was in June 1950 that, in response to the crossing of the demarcation line by North Korean troops, Truman and his advisers decided to protect Telwan and to participate in the first Indochina war. The United States remains against its will the prisoner of decisions made more than twenty years ago on the spur of a misinterpreted event.

An Overdue Recognition

By C. L. Sulzberger

BOGOTA, Colombia.—As far as I know the only integral independent country on the map with which the United States has never had diplomatic relations is the Mongolian People's Republic, a pro-Soviet state lying between the eastern reaches of the U.S.S.R. and Communist Chine. This spring the republic celebrates its fiftieth birthday.

Some observers maintain the wast but sparsely inhabited land is only a Soviet satrapy. Nevertheless, it is widely recognized and is probably no less free in its actions today than Czechosiovakia, with which Washington continues to exchange ambassadors. There has been a tendency in

U. S. policy to maintain relations with only the non-Communist halves of partitioned states (like German: Korea and Vietnam and to oppose admission to the United Nations of blocks including equal numbers of Communist and non-Communist nations. For a long time Washington's attitude to the question of opening an embassy lo Ulan Bator. the Mongolian capital, became mined up in this separate matter.

Nonetheless, it is high time to end an anomaly which finds the United States maintaining dip-Iomatic missions in tiny states like Cyprus. Mauritius or Burundi but refusing to exchange envoys with Mongolia, a country with a fantastic history, with a vast area of 604.090 square miles and a small but energetic popuiation of 1.174,000.

Last Dec. 7. David M. Abshire, Assistant Secretary of State for Congressionel Relations, wrote Sen. Javits. Republican of New reviewed the matter of Mongolian recognition "from time to time" on the basis that the overriding consideration is whether such an action is in the United States national interest at the time it is pronosed."

In his letter he implied that Washington was not delaying such recognition because of any fear that such a move might jeonardize future development of U. S. relations with Peking. He wrote: "The People's Republic of China recognizes the People's Republic of Mongolia, maintains Neither of the two quarreling Communist behemoths has india mission in Ulan Bator, and cated any strong distaste for the prospect of an exchange of American and Mongolian ambasdoes not, to our knowledge, comment on other countries' recognitlon of Mongolia." sadors. If the parties to a dis-I am indebted to Walter A. pute that intimately concerns Mongolia don't seem to object to U.S. relations with that country,

Sheldon of Long Beach, L. I. for the contents of the Abshire letter. It was Sheldon who originally prompted the senator to inquire about State Department policy on this subject. Taiwan (Nationalist China) has steadfastly objected to U. S. recognition of Mongolia and this is almost certainly the reason for Washington's failure to act. Last year it was reported that Chiang Kai-shek's regime had persuaded the White House to reject a State Department recommends. tion that at long last diplomatic relations should be initiated.

Every time the United States has departed from its original and wholly nonideological ap-proach to the problem of recognizing other countries it has run into trouble. This practical approach was perhaps best stated in 1856 by President Franklin Pierce, little known for anything else. He said:

"It is the established policy of the United Stetes to recognize all governments without question of their source or their organization or of the means by which the governing persons attain their power, provided there be a government de facto accepted by the people of the country." Had we applied such common sense to the Soviet Union after tine Bolshevik revolution—when other Western capitals recognized the Moscow regime—or had we applied it to the Peking government of Chine at the same time, for example, as Britain, our dinfar less complicated than it is Certainly it is ridiculous to permit Chiang Kai-shek's prejudices to affect our policy toward the huge, little known but strategically located state of Outer Mongolia, which has assumed a special importance because it lies athwart one of the world's pothe Sino-Soviet border.

N.Y. Stock and Bond Prices Continue to Climb Despite Gloomy News on U.S. Business Activity

By Thomas E. Mullaney NEW YORK, March 21 (NYT). —With the return of spring. hopes are building up as they do perennially at this point in the year-for a decisive breakout in consumer spending and general business activity. But not mao? blossoms can be sighted as yet oo the economic bush. While it might be a bit early to expect any real budding the most discouraging thing insofar as government officials and essmen are concerned is the poor germination that apparently took place in the economy during the first quarter. There was oo such gloom in the financial markets last week, however, as stock and bond prices continued to bound along a steeply-graded upward path, perbaps overzealously. In its freewheeling drive over the 900 level in the Dow-Jones average, the stock market overlooked the adverse elements in the economic news, while the bond market was helped by them.

Oo the basis of data for the first two months of the year and preliminary estimates for March. it appears that the economy has not developed the strong thrust for which many analysts in Washington and elsewhere had hoped -and had expected-in this opening quarter of 1971.

That means that consumer prices have gone up only 1.6 percent in the last six months and 4.8 perceot over the last year. It is apparent, however, that the administration is harboring some doubts about the economic situation and the ability to achieve the $1,065 billion GNP projected in its budget and economic reports. Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally said two weeks ago that the administration was walking an "economic tightrope" and that its policies were subject to early change. Nader Asks Congress to Block

WASHINGTON, March 21 (AP).-Ralph Nader asked Congress today to block President Nixon's speedup of tax deductions for depreciation, calling it an unlawful $3 billion subsidy to favor-

Mr. Nader sent to a Senate Judiciary subcommittee a legal analysis of the liberalized depreciation rules, arguging that Mr. Nixon's order is a usurpation of legislative power and is not in fact a depreciation reform. He said the Treasury is propo ing to spend billions of dollars annually in a tax expenditure program never authorized by the Raid on Treasury "Once again powerful private interests have undertaken a raid on the U.S. Treasury," he wrote. 'This time, however, Treasury edvocacy of private interests has resulted in a proposal which constitutes an unlawful and serious encroachment on the congressional appropriations power."

At a White House news conference on Jan. 11, the depreciation changes were announced as z stimulant to private investment. The order, formally promulgated last week, would let businessmen write off their outlays for new equipment or machinery 20 percent fester than in the past, in

Nixon on Depreciation Plan tax deductions for depreciation. "The cost per taxpeyer per year will rise from over $45 in fiscal 1972 to over $70 in fiscal 1976," Mr. Nader said. He also criticized the President's announcement of the change as if it were an accomplished fact, before the Treasury had begun the required admin-istrative processes of public bearing and advance notice and publication of proposed regulations.

Mr. Nader sent the Senate an analysis prepared by Robert J. Domrese of the Harvard Law School, an editor of the Harvard Law Review. Mr. Domrese said the change is a plan for recovery of businessmen's capital costs "unrelated to depreciation accounting as it has traditionally been known to businessmen and accountants, as it has been understood by the courts, by Congress, by the Treasury (in the past), and indeed as it is commonly understood by the lay-

The pending rules abandon the effort to spread depreciation allowances over the useful life of an asset, the Domress study said. The proposed regulations also fail to take into account the salvage value of an asset in estimating its useful life, the re-

Tr. is hazardous for one with no that had resulted from the larger Russian to pass judgment on war that had just ended the merits of the poetry of Vladimir Mayakovsky. With the best will in the world, one ends judging poems in English, and their faults and virtues may be those of the translator rather than of the original poet. Yet this bulky. cumbersome though continually revealing collection of materials by and about Mayakovsky has an interest above and beyond that provoked by the quality of his work. In fact, the nature of his literary achievement is virtually ignored in the book. One can get a better idea of the texture of his writing from the introductory essay by Patricia Blake in "The Bedbug and Selected Poems. just reissued by World ($8.95). Mayakovsky's career has an extraliterary fascination. For he experienced in himself the artistic freedom and experimental exuberance of those early years right after the Russian revolution, and he lived long enough to see the shadow of the prison house descend on all artistic endeavor. He saw art lose its autonomy and become a sloganmaking activity, an element in production goals, a cheer leader, for the state. He did not have

There were a number of reasons for his action, but surely he could see that every artist would eventually have to agree to the deciparty hack. His death, ironically became a strong strand in the policy he despised. For in the mid-thirties it was charged that Mayakovsky had been the victim of an anti-Soviet apparatus in the Association of Proletarian Writers (RAPP), one of the more Stalinoid of literary groups. Thus his death was not only an excuse to do away with RAPP, but also became part of Russian propagands during the purges. In Her-bert Marshall's "Mayakovsky and His Poetry," published in En-gland after the poet's death, the now stient faction in RAPP was accused of being part of a Trot-akyite plot to bring down the Russian state.

to face the worst of that situation. He committed suicide in 1930 at age 36.

Mayakovaky's error was fundamental. He equated political revolution with the experimental and avant-garde impulse in the artist. It seemed natural to him that those who were destroying time-encrusted governmental forms would want to do the same for the arts. It took him a while to learn that the Bolsheviks in artistic matters were as puritan, reactionary and philistine as the most rigidly bourgeois state. Right at the beginning, Lenin castigated Lunacharsky, a commissar and high in revolutionary councils, for permitting large printings of "futuristic" writings. Lunacharsky admired the poet, but it was then at a time of ferment, when the central government was busy with the civil war and with the dislocations war that had just ended What gave the later attacks on Mayakovsky a sadistic tinge is that both in literary and political that both in literary and political matters the poet had been repolitionary before there was a revolution. While still a tenness he had participated in underground political activity and had served time in jail. Turning to painting and literature, he en-hraced the futurist philosophy of Marinetti, welcoming the price of technology, industry and the machine, Much of his sestime revolt took sophomoric logis-dressing in outlandish coshung putting on Dada-like productions interrupting traditional meeting Andactous behavior, bad manner and violent assertions kept the artistic pot boiling But Mari a kovsky was also writing pour all hovery was also writing popular in and fresh verses; poems that of were a stamulus and spur to the first young. When World War I came he opposed it; when the Boshers revolution came, he joined with it. He never quarreled with the state over polities. There is nothing in the book to indicate that he was upset by the carnage that went on around him and he did try to play the proletaret game, writing horiztory poetry for the masses. It was at this time that Pasternak decided it was time to take his own road. But there was always a sardonic side to Mayakovsky, and with the plays "The Bethous" and The Bathhouse" he left himself open to the most representations. to the most meretricions criticism.

He was good at infighting, but a like state held all the weapons.

The compiler of these records, which include official statements, newspaper clippings, love letters, telegrams, is a Polish poet and biographer, now living in Warsaw. His book seems to me to be more than a liferary exercise, as if he were trying to show what happens to a great latent under Communism even in the best of times. In this, he succeeds flawlessly. But the form of the book does not make for satisfactory reading. The significance of much of the material is never CS25000 explained. A great many ques-tions are left unanswered. The evidence is thrown in untidity. Surely it cannot all be of the same value. Much of the text reads as if it had been written in official state prose. The material is there; what it needs is a shaping hand, and Mr. Woroszylski would seem to be the man for the job. But perhaps this collage is as far as he can be red go at this time. His book has been banned in Russia, and it's only the red 53 years since the revolution. TEL Den

Yesterday Swaden considered Yesterday, Sweden scored its first victory by getting two goals in the final period to beat the United States, 4-2.

With the score 2-2 after two furious periods, the Swedes broke through for the winner with 12 minutes to go when Haakon Wickberg acored with an assist from Tord Lundstroem. With less than two minutes to play, the American goalie, Mike Curran of International Falls, Minn., failed to clear the puck and Wickberg scored again.

The United States—the darkhorse in the tournament after upsetting Czechoslovakia, 5-1, Friday night—took a 2-1 lead in the second period when Craig Falkman of St. Paul converted a pass from Henry Boucha of Warroad, Minn.

Sweden tied it on a goal by Hans Lindberg 31 seconds later. Ulf Sterner, an ex-New York Ranger, gave Sweden a 1-0 lend in the first period, but Boucha, assisted by Gary Gambucci of Hibbing, Minn, evened the score on a power play at 18:13. Tempers erupted at the end of the game and a free-for-all soon started as U. S. center Keith Christiansen got into a tassle with Swedish goalie Christer

The referees broke it up quickly and handed out penalties to Christiansen and Swedish defenseman Thommy Abrahmsson, twin brother of the goalie.

The hero of the game was goalie Abrahmsson, 23, who stopped at least half a dozen certain goals in the two first periods when the Americans were the aggressive club. Sweden's No. 1 goalie, Leif Honken Holm-qvist, broke his chinbone during a workont this morning and coach Arne Stromberg had to put Abrahmsson in the net at short notice.

Today the Swedes scored two quick goals in the final period to hand the Czechs their second straight loss.
The Czechs pulled out goalle

Marcel Sakac in the last minute and played six forwards in a desperate bid for a tie. But the Swedes kept them at bay. Sterner and Tord Lundstroem for Sweden-Sterner made it 5-5 after 9:17 and Lundstroem lifted the winning tally past Sakac after 11:43. It was Lundstroem's second goal of the day.

Laver's 13th Straight Adds Up to $160,000 nance that can be attributed as centration has never been better, By Neil Amdur

NEW YORK, March 21 (NYT). -To the surprise of no one, including Tom Okker, Rod Laver won the final match in the Tennis Champions Classic last night and a check for $35,000 for a second consecutive year.

Playing what he described as "the best tennis I've ever played at the right time," Laver, 32, overwhelmed Okker, 7-5, 8-2, 6-1, before a crowd of 8,322 at Madison Square Garden. The match lasted only one hour 15 minutes.

The victory completed a Laver sweep of all 13 singles matches in the tournament and brought the red-haired Australian's total earning in the series to $180,000. It also wrote the latest chapter to a career that has produced two grand-slam titles and a ranking as the world's No. 1 player, if not one of the greatest ever.

Okker, 27, who beat Roy Emerson in five acts on Thursday night for a herth in the final, collected his higgest two paydays as a pro-fessional—$15,000 for the Emerson triumph and another $15,000 as a losing finalist

Paris Skyline Rising Toward Eiffel Tower

By John Vinocur

PARIS (AP).—Just downstream from the Eiffel Tower. Paris is building a riverfront skyline that may soon look a little bit like New York's East Side or Chicago's Lake Shore Drive.

The area is called front de Seine, a part the 15th Arrondissement where 20 32-story buildings are scheduled to be completed by 1974. A couple are office buildings, two are low-rent apartment houses with a limited income requirement for residence and the rest what French real estate promoters describe in their brochures as "towers"-buildings where the purchase price of the average four-room apartment runs about 400,000 francs, about $72,000.

There is mild criticism about the anarchy of the architecture, a kind of glassbox, high-rise modern, but the real problem is that the new construction is the kind that pushes the middle class out of the city, dividing its core between rich and poor as in New York.

Middle-range buildings will not exist at front de Seine. Studies for the 2,660 apartments show that buyers are expected to have an average monthly income of more than 7.000 francs-$1,260-an executive class in France.

Public reaction so far has been minimal and most of the Freoch press has ignored the situation. The only sign of neighborhood resistance on a recent visit was a wall painted over to read "15th out, 16th This was a poke at the bourgeois 16th Arrondissement, home of high repts and Brigitte Bardot, that faces the project across the river.

Bernard Ducroix, a spokesman for SEMEA XV, the city-backed corporation in charge of the rehabilitation project, smiled a bit sheepishly when he was asked how the middle class was left out of a program that takes in roughly 75 acres of riverfront land.

It was pointed out to him that of the two low-rent constructions, one was near a heating plant and well away from any river view. The other is partially financed by the postal worker employees fund so that only 80 of its 400 apartment units will be available to the average truck driver or factory worker. The rest will go to favored post office employees.

"All that is true," Ducroix said, "and in reference to the middle class, that is the particular tragedy of these operations. But without the financing from the big real estate promoters we never would have been able to put in the low-rent housing and other facilities. It's regrettable that the middle class, people like me, didn't fit, But to tell you the truth, as Paris stands now. I don't see any other area of new construction that is simed at the middle class either." Ducroix said that a major problem for the recovation program was that it was one of the first projects of its kind—40 more acres will be developed later a blt inland from the river-since Baron Haussmann tore up much of Paris in the late 19th century.

This meant that the city wanted a prestige operation and it moved ahead slowly from 1961, when the renovation plan was approved, buying up the old eyesore garages, warehouses and factories that cluttered the waterfront area.

Because the land was expensive, it was out of the question, Ducroix said, to turn it over for construction of middle or lowincome housing because builders would bave thought they would never get a return on their investment.

Since the city placed a priority on cleaning up the tumbledown aspect of the neighborhood, the high-rent construction seemed the fastest way to do that and provide for later phases of the renewal plan, which will create more low-rent housing, but behind the luxury towers.

Ducroix indicated the city also felt morally satisfied because it held a 60-year lease on the construction and could conceivably tear it all down around 2035. The city'e concern for "a prestige oper ation"—the phrase is that of Rene Galy-Dejean, the SEMEA president—has meant big profits for the building contractors.

Claude Oglivie of John Arthur and Tiffen, a construction firm which is building three towers, said that it planned its investment figuring on about 20 to 25 percent profit.
"Wa weren't too optimistic at first," he said, "because we figured the French might not react well to skycraper housing. But now it's taking off and sales are equal to our hopes. Most of the builders have in fact increased their prices for their apartments over the past year, saying this takes extra costs into account. Other sources said the prices went up because business was good and the profit margin was now between 30 and 35 percent.

A second Tiffen man, Guy Maire, was asked how tower residents—two of the buildings are completed—reacted to having a couple of low-rent buildings in the neigh-

"Oh," he said. "most of them are delighted. You know how hard it is to get a maid in this town. Well, our people think they'll have a ready source of supply just nearby. They're secretly pleased." Living in one of the new apartments can have inconveniences. A 30th-floor resident offered this complaint: During the summer the rest was sometimes disturbed by the voice of a tour guide floating up from the loud-speaker of an excursion boat on the Seine 130 yards below.
